Most Kaure speakers live in villages in Kecamatan Kaure, Kabupaten Jayapura in Irian Jaya, Indonesia. According to a population survey conducted in August 1985 in the three Kaure villages of Harna, Masta, and Wes, the Kaure language is spoken by 407 people. These villages are located around the Lereh airstrip about 50 miles southwest of Sentani, near the Nawan river. Harna, with about 130 Kaure speakers, is situated at the western end of the airstrip, and Masta, with about 100 Kaure speakers, at its eastern end. Wes, with about 180 Kaure speakers, is located about 200 m south of Masta. The nearby Sause village of Badrun was recently built about 1 km west of Harna. ... Another dialect of Kaure, which is spoken by about 100 people, can be found in the village of Aurina about 40 km southwest of Lereh.

Most of the inhabitants of Harna and Masta are native to these villages. Wes was recently built by the government in order to gather all Kaure people who lived in small isolated villages. These were often several days' walk from medical help and schooling. Most of these villages have now been vacated in favor of the larger villages. Others live in the capital Jayapura. A few have married into other language groups and live in the villages of their spouses. Although there is no reliable population survey available, it is estimated that the total number of Kaure speakers is less than 500.

- Dommel & Dommel 1991:2.

The people of Harna and Masta speak a similar dialect while those of Wes speak a different dialect; however, mutual intelligibility is very high. Our research was conducted primarily with the people of Harna and Masta.

- Dommel & Dommel 1991:2.

The Kaure people of the Eastern Lakes Plain area of Irian Jaya (Indonesia) currently live in the three villages of Harna, Masta, and Wes around the Lereh airstrip about fifty miles southwest of Sentani, and in the recently rebuilt village of Aurina about thirty miles southeast of Lereh. All of these villages are in the Kecamatan Kaure, Kabupaten Jayapura ... A few Kaure people live in Irian Jaya's capital city, Jayapura. The total Kaure population is between 400 and 450 people. ...

Kaure is classified by Voorhoeve (1975:45) as a non-Austronesian language of the Kaure family, Kaure stock of the Trans-New-Guinea phylum. The people of Harna and Masta speak the same dialect, which differs slightly from the one spoken at Wes and Aurina. ...
